What fees will I pay?

BROKERAGE (COMMISSION-BASED)	INVESTMENT ADVISORY (FEE-BASED)
In a brokerage account, you will incur transaction charges when you buy or sell securities, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Commissions; • Markups and markdowns (similar to commissions); • Upfront or ongoing fees that you pay to a mutual fund or other product issuer, a portion of which is paid to us in connection with your transaction; and • Handling and processing fees on each securities transaction. Transaction, commission, and other charges may differ from one product to another which creates an incentive for us to recommend products that have higher charges if a portion of the charges are shared with us. You will incur greater total cost when there are more transactions in your account, which creates an incentive (conflict of interest) for us to encourage you to trade more often.	In an investment advisory account, you will pay an on-going advisory fee that is charged in advance of each quarter, based on the value of the cash and investments in your account on the last business day of the previous quarter. The amount paid to our firm and your financial professional does not vary based on the type of investment we select on your behalf. Our overall Advisory fees vary and are negotiable. If your fee is a “wrap” fee, it will generally be a higher advisory fee, but will include other fees, such as third-party manager fees, execution fees, and custody and clearing fees. Our fees are separate from charges assessed by third-parties, such as broker-dealers, custodians, and mutual fund companies. These costs are in addition to our fees and are not shared with us.

BROKERAGE (COMMISSION-BASED)

Depending upon your account and relationship, you may also incur periodic account maintenance or IRA custodial fees, as well as processing, service, and account fees upon certain events or occurrences. You will incur interest charges if you borrow on margin using a securities-based loan in any of your accounts. Certain investments, such as mutual funds, have embedded fees that are generally paid by you to the companies that sponsor, manage, and/or promote the investment.

INVESTMENT ADVISORY (FEE-BASED)

During periods of lower trading activity, the advisory fee may be higher than the transaction charges you would have paid in a brokerage account. To determine whether an investment advisory account is appropriate for you, you should carefully analyze the projected costs of an investment advisory account versus a brokerage account based on factors such as expected size, volume and frequency of transactions, projected holding period and the advisory services provided by your financial professional.

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

For additional information about our fees and charges, please see Form ADV, Part 2A Brochure (Item 5).

CONVERSATION STARTER

- Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go towards fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations as my broker-dealer or when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation as a broker/ dealer or act as your investment adviser, we must act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we earn money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask about these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations and investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

Third-party payments – We receive payments from third-parties when you invest in certain products (e.g. mutual funds). These payments represent additional compensation to us, or provide compensation for ongoing support activities we perform on behalf of third parties, such as product servicing, tax reporting, statement and trade confirmation mailings or recordkeeping. This results in a financial incentive to recommend products that provide additional compensation to us over those that pay lesser amounts or none at all. Such payments may also affect which products we make available.

Revenue sharing - The companies that sponsor, manage, and/or promote certain investments offered by us earn revenue by charging you a fee, such as a management fee in a mutual fund. A portion of these fees may be shared with us. We use the payments in part to support activities related to servicing client accounts, to provide educational programs and technology applications to financial professionals, and to provide ongoing product support for certain investments. We have an incentive to promote the product sponsors that share the most revenues over those that share less revenues or none at all.

This summary does not identify all our conflicts of interest, or all material facts about the conflicts of interest listed. For additional information about these and other conflicts of interest, please see Items 10-12 on Form ADV, Part 2A Brochure.

How do your financial professionals make money?

Most financial professionals are compensated based on a percentage of the revenue sources described below:

- Commissions, markups and markdowns earned in brokerage accounts, which vary by product.
- Ongoing fees from mutual fund and certain other product issuers.
- Advisory fees which are generally assessed quarterly at the rate you agreed upon with your financial professional (based on our established fee schedule).
- Fees related to other products and services provided to you.

The percentage of revenue that your financial professional receives will generally increase as the total value of their client accounts increases. Therefore, financial professionals are incentivized to increase the value of, and resulting revenues from, your and other clients' accounts.

- Financial professionals may receive incentive compensation based on revenues earned from client accounts. Incentives may take the form of deferred compensation, paid travel and/or reimbursement of certain expenses.
- When financial professionals affiliate with us, they may receive compensation in connection with transitioning from their prior firm. This may include an upfront payment and additional potential compensation based on the revenues generated from client accounts in the first few years or on the growth in total assets they manage. This creates incentives for financial professionals to encourage you to move your assets to Rogan & Associates, Inc and to produce greater revenues by charging higher fees and engaging in commission-generating securities transactions.
